Actor Bio:

Working both in front of the camera & behind it has bestowed Carina Rhea with a well-roundedness, like recently having done stunts.

After early theatre & choir as a youth, she got back into doing theatre during college, which prompted her to switch majors out of nursing and into a BA program. Her love of Pittsburgh & performing in local theatre there was not enough to sustain her, but it did solidify her training.

Carina earned her SAG card on "E.R." as a stand-in, joining AFTRA soon after. Modeling a bit of print work and local runway yielded little, however, she soon began booking music videos (like with the group Say Anything) and even worked as a hand model in commercials.

Her first commercial principal didn't make it to air (a Clairol commercial with Teri Hatcher). And so her principal debut commercial was a PSA for the Partnership For a Drug Free America playing a crystal meth addict. The next principal spot she booked was opposite Jeff Goldblum for the Irish National Lottery.

Carina also worked as a sketch artist for a segment on "Tonight Show with Conan O'Brien", playing Khloe Kardashian. Casting suggested perhaps that she'd return for future segments, but soon Conan lost his show. (IMDB has yet to correct Carina's credits).

Behind the scenes has also kept her busy with an extensive resume of actresses that she has stood-in for & parts doubled for (and recently stunt doubled for), including but not limited to: Alex Kingston, Wendie Malick, Jane Leeves, Suzie Plakson, Wendie Braun, and Elisabeth Moss, et al. Carina has also worked at length as a promotional model.

Aside from Pitt, she's also studied with the likes of Judy Kerr, Jan Bina & Jon Smet, Louise Chamis, Joe Reich, Mike Fenton, & a few others.

When she's not working, Carina enjoys reading & writing, loves the great outdoors, including hiking and swimming, and thinks Yosemite is must-see for all. She loves attending live concerts of all kinds and is, naturally, a movie enthusiast.
