Actor Bio:

Chase Coleman was born in Tuscaloosa, Alabama and raised in Monroe, Louisiana. He has been seen on such prestigious projects as Boardwalk Empire, The Good Wife, Gossip Girl, Law & Order, and Kings. Most recently he was Rob in the new original KGB espionage FX series, "The Americans." He became involved in the entertainment industry at 16, when he started playing guitar and performing as lead singer in a rock band. He became quite involved at the Straus community theatre and the theatre of University of Louisiana at Monroe. In his junior year at college, he signed with the Baton Rouge agency, Stage 2000, at which time he was invited to Dallas to compete at the Mike Beaty Model and Talent Expo. It was there that Chase won several awards including: best monologue, overall fitness model, as well as several others. There he met Suzanne Schachter of Suzelle Enterprises NYC, at which time he was invited to come to New York to test the market for the summer. He immediately landed the role as Garrett on One Life to Live. Deciding to stay in New York, he shifted to online courses in order to finish his Business Marketing degree. He has studied with various teachers and at various schools in NYC, but above all with the esteemed Jennifer Gelfer of the Haymarket Annex. He moved to Los Angeles in the Fall of 2012.
