Actor Bio:

Almost a year to the day after graduating from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln & leaving her hometown of Omaha for Los Angeles, Lindsay Seim landed a major role in the feature film "California Dreaming." She co-starred with Dave Foley, (Kids in the Hall, News Radio) Lea Thompson, (Back to the Future, Caroline in the City) Vicki Lewis, (News Radio) & Patricia Richardson (Home Improvement.)

Her next project was the BAFTA/LA Student Award-winning AFI film, "The Sunday Man," with Broadway's Annie Potts (Designing Women) & Peter Coyote (Erin Brokovich, The 4400.) She then appeared in the independent "Hip-Hopera" feature, "Caught on Tape," starring Vivica A. Fox (Curb Your Enthusiasm) Kel Mitchell (Keenan & Kel) & rapper Sticky Fingaz (Blade.)

She returned to her Nebraska roots in 2007 to perform as a Guest Artist in Residence in the Nebraska Repertory Theatre's production of "The Metamorphoses." Upon completion of her residency, Seim was honored as a Distinguished Alumnus of UNL's Johnny Carson School of Theatre and Film.

During her brief return to Nebraska, she also co-starred in the Ted Lange (The Love Boat) -directed family drama, "For Love of Amy" with John Beasley, (Everwood, Treme) which screened at the Director's Guild of America in 2010 & was shown in competition at several festivals, including the Pan African Film Festival in Culver City, where it was purchased for distribution.

Lindsay Seim has performed in numerous Los Angeles-area theatre productions, including her L.A. Stage Alliance Ovation Award-nominated role in Rose Martula's "Salsa Saved the Girls." Other favorite roles include playing heroine Kate Hardcastle in the Culver City Public Theatre's production of "She Stoops to Conquer," & originating the role of Merry in Joanclair Richter's world-premiere play "It's Good 2 Be Crazy," produced at The Hudson Guild Theatre.

Seim has appeared in several national commercials, including spots for Mazda, Axe, Sports Authority & The National Asthma Foundation, & has appeared as a featured guest on the Screen Actor's Guild webseries "Actor's Entertainment." She has worked with two-time Academy Award-winning cinematographer/director Janusz Kaminski (Schindler's List, Saving Private Ryan) on multiple occasions. He recently directed her in a guest spot on the NBC drama, "The Event" & in a featured role in his independent film, "American Dream."
