SAG-AFTRA

9-1-1, Mayans M.C., and Netflix's Magic for Humans. He has supporting roles in the award-winning film, 'The Divisible', and the online streaming film, 'The Purple Night', and a Walmart Back to School tv commercial.

As a 4-year-old toddler, he was noticed for his ethnic ambiguous features and began modeling his magnetic charisma, infectious energy, unique signature mop of golden curls, and his hazel eyes and sun kissed complexion.

Very quickly Mateo Ray earned roles in numerous television, film and commercial productions. Additional credits include: FX/Hulu's 'Dave', NBA MLK Day TV commercial, the lead role in the LA Shorts International Film Festival selection, 'See You at Sunrise' short film, and a few live stand-up comedy gigs.

In addition to building an impressive resume before age 9, Mateo Ray is on a personal mission to make friends on every set he works on, by consistently exuding charm and joy, paired with a shiny personality, mature work ethic and an affinity for telling a few good jokes. His family recently moved closer to Hollywood where he can more easily pursue his promising acting, modeling, and YouTuber (as Doughnut Daily subscriber) gamer career.
