Actor Bio:

Nick's introduction into the Entertainment Industry was providing "Celebrity" voices to numerous San Francisco Bay Area Radio Stations. It was in these "Celebrity Interviews" where Nick showcased his talents as an Impressionist, appearing on various Morning Shows as Celebrities such as Mike Tyson, Pee Wee Herman and Jack Nicholson to name a few. Nick has worked with such Radio Personalities as "Mancow", Mark S. Allen (Mark at the Movies on Reelz), Perry Stone and Jeff Blazy.

Nick has also provided his voice to hundreds of commercials, narrations and voiceovers in Film, Radio and Television. Nick appeared on MTV's Celebrity Death Match Season 3 Premiere as Former Chicago Cubs slugger, Sammy Sosa. The episode pitted Sammy Sosa vs. Mark McGwire. Nick is also currently the voice of the legendary Winchester Mystery House's Audio Guide Tour. Nick also has provided the voice of the Mystery House's Halloween Tour, "Walk with the Spirits".

Nick's Acting debut was as a Bellboy in Malpaso Productions, "The Rookie", which was directed and starred in by Oscar Award Winning Director Clint Eastwood, as well as Charlie Sheen. Nick eventually relocated to the Sacramento area in 1991, where he met now longtime friend and collage Writer/Director Joe Carnahan, while auditioning for Carnahan's film "Split". Fenske has gone on to work with Joe on countless other projects including "Blood, Guts, Bullets and Octane", "Smokin Aces" and most recently in "Stretch", opposite Patrick Wilson. Stretch also stars Chris Pine, Jessica Alba, Ray Liotta and David Hasselhoff.

Nick made his Network debut by appearing in the Season Finale of NBC's "State of Affairs" starring, Katherine Heigl and Afre Woodard and a show produced by Joe Carnahan.

Most recently Nick has been working with Louis Mandylor (My Big Fat Greek Wedding) on a show entitled, "Delta Bounty". Nick was also directed by Tim Russ in the Pilot of the Series, "Rellik". Nick's most recent work was on the Teen Comedy, Mamaboy, where Nick played Jeff Hankins.
