Actor Bio:

Xolo Mariduenia portrays Victor on NBC's drama series "Parenthood." Victor was recently adopted by Julia (Erika Christensen) and Joel (Sam Jaeger).

For Mariduenia, being involved in the entertainment industry runs in the family. Most of his early years were spent in radio studios with his mother watching other artists perform. It was here that his curiosity and interest in the field peaked. At the tender age of nine, Mariduenia told his parents, "I want to be on TV. That would be cool."

His natural talent and unique ethnicity (Mexican, Cuban, and Ecuadorian descent) helped him quickly sign with an agent and nail his first audition, a national commercial for Sears. He went on to snag several more national spots and advertisements for major brands including Target, Verizon, Payless Shoes, and Lowe's. Only a year later, Mariduenia is taking Hollywood by storm starring as Victor on NBC's primetime hit drama "Parenthood," alongside Lauren Graham, Peter Krause, and an all-star ensemble cast. First appearing in the Season 3 finale as the newly adopted son of Julia Braverman (Erika Christensen), Joel Graham (Sam Jaeger), and brother of Sydney (Savannah Paige Rae), Mariduenia is now a series regular for Season 4. This season chronicles the new family's adjustment to adoption, and showcases Mariduenia's talents as a boy with a rough upbringing deserving of a loving family. Other TV appearances include lending his voice on the hit animated series "Family Guy" and an upcoming guest starring role on the hit TNT drama "Major Crimes."

Mariduenia can also be seen on the big screen, with a supporting role in the new film, "Dealin' With Idiots," directed by Jeff Garlin. Based on events in the director's life, "Dealin' with Idiots" tells the tale of the antics that occur with parents and their athletically blessed children. Mariduenia plays Manny, the best friend of Jeff Garlin's son and team shortstop. He costars alongside his onscreen mothers Gina Gershon and Keri Kenny.

Mariduenia has been already recognized for his talent by being named one of Latina Magazine's 50 Brightest Stars under 25. He was also nominated for an Imagen Award (Best Young Actor/Television) and won a Young Artist Award (Outstanding Young Ensemble in a TV Series). When not working, Mariduenia enjoys martial arts, video games, and tennis. He especially loves music, spending much of his time listening and spinning records with his dad. Due to his natural inquisitiveness, he also has a love of science and watches as much Discovery Channel as he can. Xolo is also very active in volunteering in campaigns whose focus is Foster Youth, Immigrant families, and Food Equity.

Mariduenia resides in Los Angeles. He is fluent in both English and Spanish.
